

Tavistock

in small and large groups we studied our behavior in the here-and-now

there's little to teach that we could not discover in our own fogged minds our ids and egos supplied all the rich, raw grist needed for learning the infrastructure of large organizations was found in our selves we excavated our collective unconscious those long, deep weekends

Setting: Annual Group Relations (Tavistock) Conferences organized by The George Washington University, Longmeadow, Massachusetts, 1979-1985

Image: Statue of Sigmund Freud at the Tavistock Institute, London, England. Source: Wikipedia

Created: 17 January 2022

dandana.us/poems