

Epilogue

Legacy

one hundred haiku, gleanings from these eighty years along life's pathway:

how to make love work,
to face death eyes wide open, how and why we're here

one day I'll expire, life's horizon shall be breached, but words may live on —love made and love earned, death faced free of needless fear, good deeds done for all—in readers' lived lives —to no greater legacy could I dare aspire
