

The Fist Bump

Worlds apart in ways once thought relevant, cousins meet in the land of common ancestors. Our mothers were sisters a mere fifty millennia ago. We've traveled distant roads to the same place. I see you seeing me. We breathe the same air. I feel our bond. We salute our shared humanity.

Susan and Saruni, Maasai Mara, 2018

15 December 2025

dandana.us