

Living by Default

Unless we choose otherwise, we live each day by default, overriding chronic pain, grief, despair, buoyed by often-implausible hope of relief from such maladies, leavened by moments of joy. By habit, instinct and will, our organism persists to function. Body memory of primordial predators energizes self-preservation, rational choice be damned.

15 February 2026

dandana.us