

One Day in History

Five million years ago, only yesterday in geologic time, a land bridge collapsed here, unleashing a mile-high waterfall, quickly filling today's Mediterranean, enabling Minoans, Greeks, and Romans to evolve Western civilization on its fertile, embattled shores over five momentous millennia. Imagining that planet-changing day in poetic awe, but lacking words.

Wiki: Zanclean megaflood

8 April 2026

dandana.us/micros